MRS. DALY AND THE LATIN QUARTER FETE.

Mrs. Daly will have charge of the supper at the Latin Quarter Fete and she has promised a delectable supper and a unique service all in keeping with such a fete, which, of course, includes reasonable charges. But what is a "Latin Quarter Fete" anyway?

In the gay city of Paris, on the left bank of the Seine, the art students of whom you read and hear so much, are gathered. At night on any gala occasion you would see these art students, picturesque at least apparently light-hearted; dancing in the streets to the fascinating music of accordion and violin. It is a colorful and a unique picture, such as one sees nowhere else, and the spectator soon finds him or herself a participant of the festivities, which is exactly what will happen at the fete to be given at the armory here on May Day evening. Those arranging the fete are seeing to it that it will be a faithful reproduction of the picturesqueness and the movement of such a revel in its native haunts. And they ask that their guests come in fancy or historic or humorous costumes, if they will, or in street clothes if that suits their fancy better.

JUDGE CUNNINGHAM SAYS CATHOLIC WELCOMES KLAN.

Middletown, N. Y., April 16.—W. D. Cunningham, a former judge of the court of claims, in an address at the communion breakfast of the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church here Sunday said: "I am glad there is such a thing as the Ku Klux Klan. God help us if we don't have competition. There's no need to be worried over the Ku Klux Klan. It is like a pin prick in a shirt. It may hurt but it does not destroy."

Brownies Begin With Victory.

The Brownies A. C. won the first game of the season from the Young Colonials, its rival, by a score of 14 to 11. H. Streifer and A. Streifer, the star battery for the Brownies, worked hard and showed up. Captain Wiberg, the crack first baseman, saved the game in the last inning by making a wonderful catch. The score by innings follows: Young Colonials 2 4 1 5 0 4—11; Brownies 1 2 4 0 5 3—14. Batteries—H. Streifer and A. Streifer; Ostrander and Cassel.

NEW BUS FOR HIGHLAND ROUTE

John Asa DuBols, proprietor of the Diamond D bus line, has placed an order for four more passenger busses for service on the lines from Kingston to Highland and from Marlborough to Newburgh.

The bus which will be placed on the Highland-Kingston route has a capacity for 22 passengers and will be delivered on April 20. Another bus, which will be placed on the Marlborough-Newburgh route, will have a capacity for 32 passengers and will be the finest of its kind in this section. The other two busses, each of which will carry 16 passengers, will not be delivered until later in the season. The trucks are Garfords.

This will make twelve busses for the Diamond D line.

NORTH STREET OPEN TO TRAFFIC

North street is again open to traffic. The steam shovel which has been at work clearing a way through the huge clay slide between East Union street and Delaware avenue, quit work Saturday after opening the trolley tracks and a passage way alongside the tracks sufficiently wide for one way traffic.

The remainder of the slide will be removed with horse and cart, and Dwyer Brothers, owners of the clay bank, had a force of men at work today clearing away the clay.

The trolley road, however, has not resumed traffic to Kingston Point as yet. Residents in that section have hopes that cars will start running shortly as they have to walk from Kingston Point to Albany street in order to get a trolley car.

The amount will equal the price of the Studebaker car as represented. Should anyone who purchased tickets and hold coupons care to have the money refunded, may obtain same by applying in person or by mail at the Elks' home on Fair street, between today and the 21st of April.

MUSIC LESSONS WITH SMILES

That is the best way to describe a recital which the littlest folks of Mrs. Harry P. Dodge's music class gave at the Dodge studio on Saturday afternoon. Eighteen happy little people showed their mothers and big sisters and friends just what good times they have when they really take their lessons, and then they gave a really truly "recital," with a program just like grown folks, so it was all a lovely way in which to begin this week of vacation. In the first place Mrs. Dodge explained that in today's teaching of music to children, they are taught to listen before they attempt to perform, and they learn to make their own music as well as to enjoy other people's musical thoughts.

To begin with, the children sang several little songs about kittens and puppies, rain and the birds, etc. Then some of the boys and girls sang songs individually, making it very evident that they were getting much pleasure from the words, the melody and the rhythm as did their audience. A lesson in rhythm was called by the pretty name of "sprinkling the flowers." "Teacher" drew some spring blossoms on the blackboard. Then as she played little pieces of differing rhythm the children, two at a time, dotted the blackboard poses with their chalk pencils in time to the music. As Mrs. Dodge played a melody they drew on the blackboard up and down or horizontal lines following the melody and so well was some of the work done, that one could easily have reproduced the "tune" from the drawing.

And how the eighteen pairs of eyes did sparkle—and how the boys had just as good times as the girls!—when it came time to make their own melodies! Their teacher gave them a line of poetry, which they repeated after her, and then before one knew what had happened, one girl sang a melody to the words, and a right pretty and appropriate melody. Another child put the notes on the blackboard, and still another—the class having decided upon the rhythm of the melody sung—divided the music into measures, and there you were with your very own song. A longer verse of two lines was given an excellent "tune" for the first line, but the other children decided that the second line was too monotonous, so another youthful musician "composed" a better ending and the whole song was soon on the blackboard, and quite correct as to notation, and rhythm.

That just gives an idea of what lots of fun it is to begin to take music lessons today, especially if your teacher happens to be charming Mrs. Dodge, one of the "Extension Teachers" of the Seymour School of Musical Re-Education.

After this glimpse behind the scenes of lessons in the learning, the children gave the following program remarkably well, often singing with the things they played, and again playing their pretty little pieces in two or three keys:

Bad Breath

Is Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot strip. Try it today.

The only reason a doctor asks a woman to hold out her tongue is to get a chance to write a prescription.

We heard a story the other day about a school teacher who sent home a little boy with a note to his mother suggesting that he be given a bath. The mother replied: "Tommy ain't no rose. Learn him, not smell him."

It would not be so bad if people quit talking after they told all they knew.

WILLOW.

Willow, April 14.—Captain and Mrs. Harry T. Blythe and Miss Jessie Blythe were guests of Captain Cross at Crosspatch on Sunday.

DeWitt DeVall has rented E. E. Wilber's property, recently occupied by the late Frank Martin.

Harry T. Martin made a business trip to Kingston Friday.

Services will be held every night in the Wesleyan Methodist Church, from April 15 to 22 inclusive, except Friday the 20.

Miss Ida Leadly has returned from a three month's visit to New York city and Ashbury Park.

Walter Hoffman is engaged in painting August Hugemeyers bungalow here.

Frank Simmons has accepted a position at Wild Wood Farms.

Miss Jessie Blythe spent Friday in Kingston, on business.

The men in the community were called out on Wednesday to fight a fire, kindled by sparks from a saw house, on Reese Smith's property, near Ideal Park. Due to prompt action on the part of residents of the park, the fire was well under control when the Willow contingent arrived. Through the blaze spread over a large area, no great damage was done.

Miss Marguerite Gault spent the week end with her mother, Mrs. Anna Howland, here.

Quick, William Hoffman, William Gault and Preston Hoffman all accepted positions at carpenter Blythe.

You see the raw materials enter, see them converted into the finished units and added in proper order to the ever-moving assembly line and finally the completed car driven away under its own power.

The picture was produced under the direction of the United States Department of Commerce, in cooperation with the Studebaker Corporation and will be shown in all parts of the world. FOR SPORTS WEAR

Knitted Suits to Be Among the Spring Favorites.

Wool and Silk Are Combined in Dresses Which Have Marks of Designer's Models.

Domino patterns in sweaters and suits are very much the fashion, notes a fashion writer in the New York Tribune. This effect is obtained by using silk and wool of the same color in tiny alternating squares.

A three-piece knitted suit in domino pattern is of silk and wool. The blouse top of the dress is all of silk delicately trimmed with a sort of knitted wool braid. Both the skirt and the jacket, the latter in Chinese mandarin form, show the domino pattern.

Wool jersey suits for sports are made with borders in argona effect called laine grasse. There are interesting new knitted dresses which have all the marks of dressmaker-made models. Very attractive are those of white silk with beautifully wrought patterns in white wool.

Some attractive suits are of knitted wool in brown, beige and black, in chine effects. These consist of two pieces, a skirt and a straight box coat, the bottom of the coat being in loose giraffe effect with brown bands.

An exceptionally attractive model just brought over from Paris is of a soft sea-foam gray, with an embro-ered pattern in tobacco brown. Another in gray has the pattern brought out in black. Many of these frocks have capes knitted in a matching pattern.

Another striking model is in yellow and black wool, showing a border trimming in black silk interwoven to give the effect of embroidery. Beige chine wool is used for a one-piece knitted dress which is trimmed with panels of beige silk.

Empire Furniture Period.

Sideboards were among the best pieces of furniture both in design and structure, produced during the American Empire period. High chests of drawers having gone out of fashion, large wardrobes with doors extending from top to bottom became the vogue. Mirrors also were used more freely for home decoration, the frames being made in mahogany and gilt. The clocks were the mahogany case mantel or shelf clock, the lower part of the door being embellished with painting, scenes, etc. From this period also date the Willard band clocks and the lyre-shaped clocks. American writers record that all of the hanging clocks and all of the shelf clocks of American manufacture belong to the Empire period.

PEARLS TIGHT ABOUT THROAT

Risk Bands Are No Longer Left to Hang Loosely in Long and Ruffled Strands.

Pearls, as the current fashion states, are worn tight about the throat. They are no longer left to hang loosely in long and ruffled strands. This is entirely a new idea, but quite consistent with the style of dress that we have been adopting with such zeal and with the culture arrangements that have developed to go along with them.

For the bobbed heads supplemented by swishes of various sorts there are those wreaths of silver and gold meant for evening wear. They wind round the head in great severity or immoderate swirling lines, according to the style of dress and the type of face. Some of them are merely wide bands of ribbon, some are twisted together and still others are made of strings of ribbon flowers in many varying and contrasting colors. Some girls are even stringing strands of pearls through their curling locks and there are any number of jeweled bands showing the colors of the gem or keeping to the sparkle of crystals, if that seems a better combination.

SPRING COLORS TO BE GAY

Reds, Blues, Greens and Grays, Pale and Bandanna Effects Promised to Be Popular.

Millinery trade authorities agree that this spring will be a season of color, and the indications where more than one shade is used lean more strongly to somber effects than to harmonizing contrasts.

Reds, especially berry, and the full family of browns top the list of popular hues at the moment, and give promise of holding their position throughout the entire season. The call for the various reds is accepted as a reaction from a season of blues, and the favored colorings include all the red, rose and pink shades. Lavender green continues in favor, and fog gray is a new hue that is well liked. In the combinations, palsey and bandanna effects have the call.

Pig Has Been Blamed.

The pig is a much-maligned animal. "As greedy as a pig" is a stock quotation. But a pig is not as greedy as a canary, which has been known to consume two and one-half times its own weight in one day. "As stupid as a pig" is another slander. The intelligence of the pig is only slightly inferior to that of the ape, and the ape's intelligence is next to that of a man. "As lazy as a pig" is to ignore the fact that in some countries the pig is trained to do the heaviest kind of work and he does it willingly and well. "As lazy as a cat" would be more proper, for the cat is really a lazy animal.

Donkeys by No Means Stupid.

"As stupid as a donkey" is an oft-repeated remark. But farmers know that to keep a donkey in the field he must look the gate. First the donkey pushes the gate and then pulls it toward him with his chin or foreleg until he succeeds in opening it. If it is not locked. But a horse does not know a gate when he sees it. Horses have been known to run until they drop dead when pursued by wild beasts. When attacked, the donkey will thrust his head and body in a dense undergrowth and present only his heels to the antagonist.

Embarrassing Moment.

One day I was late in leaving the gymnasium. I didn't notice how I had my skirt and rushed into the hall. If I had not been in such a hurry perhaps I would have noticed that the students were all laughing. One of the teachers took me by the arm, saying, "Young lady, we cannot allow you to walk in the hall dressed in such fashion." I looked down and behold, I was carrying my skirt upon my arm and rushing through the halls in my bloomers.—Exchange.

Might Even Get Mushy.

"Soft lights in the home would assist in preventing divorces," says a writer. And soft speech is even more effective.—Boston Evening Transcript.

OWES MUCH TO SEA BREEZE

High-Wind Movement Prevents Dampness and Sultriness on Part of the Texas Sea Coast.

The sea breeze at Corpus Christi, Texas, attains unusually high velocities. It has been found by the representative of the weather bureau, United States Department of Agriculture, at that point. In marked contrast to some of the southern sea coasts, where stagnant conditions are frequent, at Corpus Christi the breeze becomes a fresh, strong southerly wind in the afternoon, blowing 20 to 30 miles or more an hour, and sometimes continuing all night. Debilitating calms are relatively few on the Corpus Christi coast, while the high-wind movement prevents the dampness and sultriness so dreaded in other subtropical regions.

The cause of this unusual sea breeze, which is the swiftest and steadiest on the Texas coast, is explained by the weather bureau as due to the topography of the hinterland of Corpus Christi and the contour of the coast line at this point. Barren plains, devoid of marshes, rise gradually behind Corpus Christi bay, extending inland for 20 miles. The curve in the coast line at Corpus Christi allows the predominating southeast wind to strike the shore at such an angle that it meets with virtually no resistance from a land surface before reaching the coast. It therefore comes over Corpus Christi with practically the same velocity it has on the open ocean. The heated air of the plain back of Corpus Christi tends continually to rise, and the cooler sea air flowing in creates a continuous breeze. Although the increased sea breeze causes a diminution in the rainfall, it has its compensating features in the fact that a more comfortable climate is created.

Robots in Folk Lore.

Karel Capek has dramatized in "R. U. R." an idea that has fascinated man since the beginning of labor. A curious version which points M. Capek's moral of the dignity of work is an old Central American folk tale that Charles J. Finger has discovered. According to this legend a maker of magic whittled for the lazy inhabitants of a tropical valley 20 little wooden servants apiece which were wound up by a wooden handle that resembled a tail. The people were delighted that there was no more work to be done, but finally they tired of the mechanical servants. The little wooden men rose in revolt and drove the inhabitants into the wilderness, but they soon fought among themselves. The hungry dogs and cats fell upon them, and drove them to the forest where their descendants became monkeys, gibbering among the trees and clinging to the branches with their long, handle-like tails.

The Elusive "Amparo."

Use of the "amparo" as a legal recourse in Mexico is to be restricted in a bill which the government intends to present to congress. Abuse of the measure is the reason. President Obregon recently declared that in many instances persons arrested have already provided themselves with "amparo," which secures their immediate release without bail.

The "amparo" is one of the most generally used and at the same time the most complex procedure to be found in Mexican courts. It is a sort of injunction and writ of habeas corpus combined, and is employed either to restrain a court from acting or to secure the release of a prisoner from custody. Attorneys here admit that an exact definition of the word is impossible, and point to the fact that books have been written about it, with its specific meaning and origin still obscure.—New York Tribune.

Shows Exact Size.

The exact size of a loaf of bread is determined by a new machine, shown in Popular Mechanics Magazine, and designed by the Department of Agriculture while making tests to fix the standard volume of a loaf. A funnel is filled with flaxseed, and the loaf is tested by placing it in a container, of known cubic capacity, immediately below. The flaxseed is then allowed to pour in until the loaf is completely immersed. Any overflow will fall into pans, placed at the sides for this purpose. At the bottom of the container is a small valve, which, when opened, permits the seed to fall into a narrow graduated container. The measure of the seed in this container subtracted from the known cubic capacity of the loaf, gives the size of the loaf.

DEAD-LETTER AMENDMENTS

William Jennings Bryan contends that the Eighteenth amendment must and will be enforced, but admits that under the circumstances it is impossible to enforce the Eighteenth amendment providing against color discrimination. He could have added that it is impossible to enforce that part of the Fourteenth amendment forbidding any abridgment of the right to vote "except for rebellion or other crime." Speaking before the Southern Society in Washington recently, he said:

Back in 1888, when we were discussing imperialism, a public man from the South cautioned me against laying too much emphasis upon the Declaration of Independence, adding that in the States where the blacks menaced white supremacy it had been found necessary to ignore the doctrine that all men were created equal. I explained to him that the problem which the whites of the South had to solve did not involve the question of equality before the law; that no one denied that the blacks were entitled to equal protection in their rights. The question is, which race shall control the Government and make the laws under which both shall live? The more advanced race will always control as a matter of self-preservation, not only for the benefit of the advanced race, but for the benefit of the backward race also.

That the Southern whites and their superior intelligence must rule has long since been generally conceded. The Federal courts themselves sustaining such devices as the "grandfather clause" which have made white rule possible even in districts where the blacks were in the majority. An intolerable situation was created after the Civil War when the whites were so generally disfranchised and the negroes were granted universal manhood suffrage. The darkest page in American history was then written, and nobody now wishes to see any approximation of the negro and carpetbag government scandals of that era.

A BISHOP'S PESSIMISM.

According to Bishop Manning of New York, there is today "a clever, definite, determined attack on the whole idea of Christian morality," which is noticeable "in the lowered tone of much of our social life," which "appears constantly in our literature," is seen "in the character of the plays that are tolerated and in the sordid sex obsession which defiles the pages of the modern novel," as well as "in the spirit which asserts the right to what it calls independence and self expression, and puts its own selfish enjoyment above every consideration of right and duty." Referring to these symptoms of moral decay and to "the appalling disregard for the sacredness of marriage," Bishop Manning says further:

The present confusion as to moral standards results directly from the loss of clear religious faith. None of us can be in any doubt as to this. There is no other basis for moral or religious life. Without God and His law there is no standard. The only motive for action left is our own preference and sense of expediency. We are left with no law of conduct higher than our own inclinations and desires.

In response to the Bishop's lamentations and his call for "an awakening of simple faith in God as he has shown himself to us in Jesus Christ," it has been urged that he is too pessimistic and his charges too general and sweeping. Perhaps they are. What he says is doubtless true enough in large part of the "super-educated" and the devotees of fashion, but let us hope it is not equally true of the plain people. Certainly there are evidences of religious feeling among the masses quite apart from the activities of the churches. For example, the news comes that the coal miners at Valler, Ill., gather every morning at the foot of the shaft before starting the day's labor and hold a short prayer service "conducted with all the solemnity of a church service." The report states that "prayers for

The safety of the miners are offered by their leaders, while the men stand with bared heads until the ceremonies are concluded." Like the men who went "down to the sea in ships" in past times miners recognize that they are called on to face extra hazards of life and death, but their custom just noted may nevertheless be accepted as evidence of more faith and religious feeling among the masses than is now found among the classes which Bishop Manning seems to have chiefly in mind.

1. Is there a snapping turtle with a soft shell?

In the south there is a well-known soft-shelled turtle, Trionyx ferox, which is locally called a "soft-shelled snapping turtle." The "ferox" in its name is in honor of its ferocious and irritable nature when cornered. It can dart its head forward in a lightning flash, and has jaws with such sharp edges they can inflict a bad wound on a human hand. Good swimmers. Top shell dull brown, under a white. Head dull brown, marked with lightish streaks.

BOOSTS THE "GOLDEN STATE"

Report of Director of Agriculture of California Cannot Be Otherwise Than Encouraging.

In his annual report, Director of Agriculture H. H. Hecke states that the value of the farm crops of the state in 1922 was $307,820,000. The production of the year was the greatest in our history of the state, but, of course, values do not equal that of a somewhat smaller tonnage at peak war prices. The values given are farm values. With all the development of our fruit industries, the value of field crops has hitherto exceeded that of our orchards and vineyards, but in 1922 our fruit crops brought $184,816,000, as against $180,722,000 for field crops. This was due largely to increased fruit acreage coming into bearing, but fruit prices were relatively better than prices of field crops. A large crop of wine grapes at $75 to $100 a ton helped a lot. Concurrently with the report of the director covering last year's output, the crop-reporting service states that the outlook for the current year is excellent. Director Hecke states that California is now experiencing the most rapid agricultural development in our history. Not only is cultivated acreage increasing, but better and more intensive farming is getting better yields. Also more people are arriving to help till the soil. During the last two or three years we have frequently had occasion to say that California was the most prosperous spot in the world. That situation still continues.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Judge and Interpreter.

In a recent trial in London Mr. Justice Darling examined a witness in Italian, and translated the answers to the jury. He is also well known as a lawyer, poet, painter and huntsman. Yet, in a debate at Inner Temple hall on whether education was a handicap in life, he said: "I never went to school; I never went to a university; I am not an educated person." It will be fifty years next year since he was called to the bar, and he has been a judge for twenty-six years. On another occasion he told an audience that he began as a solicitor, but found the life too strenuous, and became a barrister because it was the most idle life he could find.—London Mail.

WHEN KINGSTON MOURNED LINCOLN

In the Decker & Fowler, Inc. Advertisement in This Issue of The Freeman the Photograph Depicts a Gathering in Front of Old Eagle Hotel Lamenting the Death of the Great Emancipator.

Fifty-eight years ago today, April 16, 1865, Abraham Lincoln, president of the United States, died after being shot the night before, April 15, while attending a play at Ford's Theater, Washington, the dastardly act having been committed by J. Wilkes Booth an actor. Decker & Fowler, Inc., 44 Main street, general insurance agents, have been using for several weeks in their advertisements in The Freeman reproductions of many interesting scenes, views and events in older Kingston, which many older as well as young residents have been clipping and saving for reference in days to come. This evening they show in their advertisement a reproduction of a photograph depicting an impromptu gathering of citizens of that day in front of the old Eagle Hotel on Main street. The gathering was for the purpose of giving expression of the sentiment of those assembled and of the people of the village of Kingston in general to the horror caused by the assassination of the Great Emancipator, Abraham Lincoln.

The picture shows the old frame hotel then conducted by the late Daniel L. Decker with black streamers festooned from the top of the two porch entrances to the hotel, and black and white streamers entwined around the porch pillars. A large framed picture, evidently that of the lamented President Lincoln, was in front of one of the porch railings. There were about forty men, women and children in the gathering, the boys being from the immediate neighborhood. Among the latter was Wallace H. Becker, then about nine years of age who lived nearby; Charles Low, whose parents lived next door; Howard Chipp who lived at the corner of Main and Fair street, where the 120th Regiment statue now stands, and probably Louis B. Van Gaasbeek and his brother Cornelius Van Gaasbeek, they living in the Kingston National Bank Building where the Kingston Club is now. Henry C. Reynolds, son of Reuben Reynolds, was a small boy then and lived a few doors from the Eagle Hotel and probably was in the picture as it was taken on a Saturday when there was no school.

The Decker family, being Daniel L. Decker, the owner of the hotel, his wife, two daughters, Inez and Emma, three sons, Gilbert, Daniel and Charles V. A. Decker are in the photograph being on one of the porches and in the windows. On the porch at the left is George T. Pierce, leaning around a post or pillar, who was the advocate of the Federal Provost Marshal's office. Standing on the sidewalk to the left of the porch stood Samuel Paulding, whose face has been recognized by those who knew him and have seen the original photograph. At the right of the framed picture the man wearing the high hat was "Squire" William Masten who owned the Eagle Hotel before Mr. Decker, while next to him stood Derick W. Sparling, who was later a prominent lawyer, next was Reuben Reynolds, a tinmith and stove dealer, at the corner of Main and East Front street; Andrew E. Jansen stood next to Mr. Reynolds, and standing in the gutter in front was H. D. W. Keyser, father of the late Dr. Joseph D. Keyser and Daniel E. Keyser a lawyer. As all of the older persons in the photograph are dead, and C. V. A. Decker, Howard Chipp and W. H. Becker who survive were too young to remember accurately. It is impossible now to give for a certainty the names of a greater number of those in the picture, but according to best of recollection some of the others in the picture were Supreme Court Justice William B. Wright, Howard Chipp, Sr., George Barnes, William H. Hamblin, County Clerk Nathan Williams, Cornelius H. Van Gaasbeek, Sr., then cashier of the Kingston National Bank, Robert H. Hill, Simon Becker, George Ewen, Surrogate Jacob Westbrook, Jr., Albert E. Nichols and Jacob H. DuBois.

The stores in the villages of Kingston and Rondout were draped in mourning, the directors of the village of Rondout met and passed resolutions and the men and women in the villages were mourning to see a cannon was fired during the time of the funeral, the cannon having been in a culvert or wide and quite deep gutter that was on the right side of Albany avenue alongside of the old Kingston Academy yard.

On Saturday evening, April 16, 1865, a public meeting was held at the court house which was largely attended, to give expression of regard to the assassination of President Lincoln. The files of the Kingston City Library of the Kingston Argus and People's Press, April 19, being the date of the former and April 20, date of the latter, gives accounts of the meeting. The Hon. William B. Wright, who was a supreme court justice, presided at the meeting. Col. H. D. N. Snyder and Dr. Henry Van Hoevenberg (father of the present Dr. Henry Van Hoevenberg, of Wall street) were chosen vice presidents, and Daniel Bradbury, editor of the People's Press, and Henry G. Crouch, editor of the Kingston Argus, were the secretaries of the meeting. Dr. John Little, who was pastor of the Presbyterian Church, offered a prayer and was followed by an address by Judge Wright.

GROW TWO CROPS IN ONE SEASON

Those Who Oppose Idea Should Remember That Weeds Thrive
on Unoccupied Land

PLANT BETWEEN POTATO ROWS

Late Cabbage is Good for Kraut and Furnishes Dairy Cows Green Feed
—Tomatoes Also Are Satisfactory Late Crops.

While some farmers do not approve of growing two crops on the soil in one season, we have practiced doing it with the most satisfactory results. Those who claim that double crops are too much of a drain on the land should remember how every field grows up in weeds just as soon as the first crop of the season is removed or stops growing, says a writer in an exchange.

This is especially true of the potato patch and why should we not sow or plant it to something profitable rather than allow the worthless, unsightly troublesome weeds to seed the patch to weed pests for another season?

If one sees that the soil is falling in fertility the cost of applying a light dressing of rich barnyard manure will still leave a handsome margin of profit from the value of the second crops secured.

Profit With Potatoes.
Perhaps the most profitable manner in which the potato patch can be handled is to dig the potatoes just as soon as they are suitable for marketing.

At this season they are invariably high-priced and the land may then be put to whatever use it is desired without damaging the potatoes by cultivation and hoeing. Then, too, one can stir the ground more thoroughly than if the planting were done between the rows of growing potatoes.

Using a Hand-Cultivator Between the Rows.

Almost any garden or field plant will make a fair crop in the potato patch after it is laid by. Sweet corn ninety-day field corn and pop corn are favorite second crops.

Late cabbage will usually make a good second crop for kraut and storage purposes or at least will furnish a lot of green feed for the dairy cows and poultry after the summer greenness is gone.

Nice Crops in Patch.
Late tomatoes also are reasonably sure of making a satisfactory crop between the potato rows. Cane, kafir corn and millet will make nice crops in the patch after the potatoes are laid by and these may either be mowed or stacked for winter roughage or utilized as late fall pasture for small stock that would not trample the ground down too much.

Rape and turnips are also favorite crops to be sown in the summer and they will make excellent pasture for the lambs and shoats that are ringed so they will not root up the potatoes.

Of course it is impossible to harrow in any of the above-named seeds, as that would tear up the vines so we aim to do the last cultivating just before a rain, letting the rain drops beat the seed into the soil.

Where this is not to be done we sow the seeds while the dirt is still damp after the last plowing.

CARE REQUIRED FOR CHICKS

Where Confined Young Fowls Must Be Given Greens and Animal Feeds,
Also Exercise.

Confined quarters increase the amount of work required to raise chicks. If attempted, the care differs from that of range chicks. In that greens and animal feeds must be provided, also exercise. If too closely confined, it is almost impossible to grow chicks at a profit, even with the most constant and faithful care.

USE FOR SURPLUS SKIM MILK

Dairyman or Farmer Who Doesn't
Own Flock of Chickens to Utilize
By-Product Is Lacking.

The dairyman or farmer who doesn't have enough chicks to handle his surplus of skim milk, knowing its great value for chickens, should either build up a sideline flock of his own to utilize this valuable by-product profitably, or else market it among the farmers and poultry raisers in his community.

CHANGES CAUSED BY PLOW

Agricultural Implement Made Revolution in Agriculture Farming From the First Time of Its Use.

Primitive women had no plow; only the digging-stick, the agricultural implement of the Australians. Later they learned to make a hoe, sometimes out of a tine of deer's horn, sometimes of stone or other material, sometimes half way between a hoe and a pick. With such an implement a fair amount of soil could be broken up and well stirred. When domestic animals were introduced into Africa the plow followed only in the eastern regions, all through the rest of Africa the hoe-culture held its own.

When the plow was invented many vegetables formerly cultivated probably became less profitable or attractive, and were given up. A revolution took place in agriculture. Probably the plow was at first dragged by women. It is impossible to say just when it was first invented. It was used during the Bronze period, for it is represented in rock-carvings of that age. Some stone plowshares may be Neolithic.

Studying European neolithic agriculture in the light of the methods of savage and barbarous peoples, or even of our pioneer ancestors, we imagine them living on the border of the forests which furnished food and wood for buildings and implements. The first step was to burn and clear a place where the undergrowth was not too heavy, and to break up the soil with pick or hoe. Here the patch of grain was sowed.

The primitive plow was hardly more than a pointed stout branch or stub of a tree, whose longer fork was fastened to the yoke. It made a furrow triangular in cross-section, broad at the top and narrowing to an edge at the bottom. It did not "turn" a strip, and between two furrows a long ridge was left unbroken. Even in Roman times cross-plowing was common or usual.

Even this rude culture needed the strength of cattle to draw the plow. The plow is associated in our mind with oxen, and the first man who made his cow, instead of his wife, draw the plow was a great benefactor. —John M. Tyler, in "The New Stone Age."

National Forest Addition.

President Harding has signed a proclamation adding more than 250,000 acres to the Lemhi National forest in Idaho.

This addition, according to a report of the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture, is the result of petitions made by associations in the state of Idaho who asked for protection in the use of the stock ranges which were being overgrazed and denuded by nomadic bands of sheep driven in from distant points.

The petitions resulted in a special act of congress on March 21, 1921, authorizing the inclusion of certain described lands found by the secretary of agriculture to be chiefly valuable for the production of timber or the protection of stream flow.

First Parcel Post.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland, wife of President Cleveland, received at the White House in 1887 the first article ever sent by parcel post, according to an old record discovered in the files of the Post Office department. The article was a feathered fan from the Island of Jamaica.

Although the date of establishment of parcel post is generally fixed at 1913 (the year of its adoption for domestic mails), the system actually started with the conclusion of parcel post conventions by the United States with foreign countries, says the Post Office department, the first of which was negotiated with Jamaica in 1887. To celebrate the adoption of the treaty Jamaica officials sent the feathered fan to Mrs. Cleveland.

New Ice Cream Container.

Ice cream may now be shipped without being packed in ice and sold in a specially designed dry container. It is utilized. This container is a double-walled metal vessel which has two inches of cork composition between the walls, and a cork-insulated top that clamps firmly into position. After the ice cream is placed in the container, two metal disks fitted with a cooling mixture that has been frozen to a solid state, are laid on top of the cream can, just under the tight-fitting cover. This outfit is said to keep the ice cream for periods of eighteen to thirty-six hours.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Horse Power.

The horse power of a boiler is often spoken, but the term is a loose one, without any definite significance, because the horse power that can be realized from a boiler depends to a very great extent on the engine that is used to develop the power, and again how hard the boiler is forced. The definition of a horse power (when that expression is used in connection with a boiler), the "evaporation of 70 pounds of water per hour, when the temperature of the feed water is 100 degrees F and the pressure of the steam is 70 pounds per square inch, as read from the gauge."

Stern English Law.

In England the great Lord Salisbury was once haled into court because he was employing an unlicensed chauffeur. He sought to explain to the court that he understood the chauffeur had a license. The judge said Salisbury had no right to assume anything. He promptly fined all hands and regretted that there was no authority to send anybody to jail.—Dearborn Independent.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 16.—Strength in the railroad stocks featured the opening of the stock market today. The steel issues and some specialties advanced 1 1/4 to 4 1/4.

Peru Marquette rose to 41 1/2. Baltimore & Ohio to 52 1/2. New York Central to 44 1/2. Union Pacific to 13 1/2.

Steel rose 1/2 to 1 1/2. Crucible to 34 and Bethlehem Steel common to 57 1/2. American Locomotive advanced 1/2 to 53 1/2. Copper stocks were irregular. Anaconda holding 1/2 to 49 and Utah 1/2 to 70 1/2.

American Smelting rose 1/2 to 64 1/2. Carra De Pasco 1/2 to 34 1/2. Soudanaker gained 1/2 to 12 1/2. The oil stocks opened strong. Texas Co. gaining 1/2 to 43 and Phillips Petroleum 1/2 to 53 1/2.

With the exception of the oil stocks, which were quite heavily sold, the stock market was firm in the forenoon trading. A drive was made against the oil group, forcing various stocks to new low prices on this movement.

Pan American Petroleum and Marland Oil both added 2 points to 69 1/2 and 10 1/2, respectively. Houston Oil declined 1/2 point to 63 while other members of this group were down fractionally.

Railroad shares showed the best tone of recent weeks. Peru Marquette at 4 1/2 and Baltimore and Ohio at 52 1/2, continued to be buoyant on a dividend possibility. St. Paul preferred rose 1 point to 41 1/2, later yielding fractionally.

Steel stocks, especially those of the independent companies, made a good showing led by Crucible and Soudanaker, the former advancing about 1 point to 34 and the latter 1 1/2 to 53 1/2.

How Snow Comes.

When two feet of snow fell in the neighborhood of Boston recently the effect on business was serious. The blockade was felt more keenly than would have been the case twenty years ago, for then automobiles and trucks were not depended upon for the movement of traffic. A Boston historian recalls that two hundred and six years ago in February snow fell to the depth of 20 feet in the Boston district. He assures the Yankees that this sort of thing is certain to occur again, and wants to know how they will be able to keep going when all of their movements are effected by the aid of gasoline. In fact, one important industrial advantage which the western states will utilize more and more in the future—Lincoln Journal.

United States Birds.

The most abundant birds in the United States are the robin and the English sparrow, but several others are common enough to make their total numbers run well into the millions. The counts so far show that the most abundant bird on farms in the North-eastern states is the robin; next to this is the English sparrow, followed by the catbird, brown thrasher, house wren, kingbird and bluebird. In the order named. The densest bird population anywhere recorded is near Washington, D. C., where a careful count in 1915 showed 135 pairs of 40 species on five acres. Two city blocks, well supplied with trees in Aiken, S. C., harbored 65 pairs on ten acres.

Fur From Wool.

A newly invented process, whereby certain kinds of fleeces not well adapted to spinning can be manufactured into a rich furlike material, which is supposed to present valuable hygienic advantage over skin furs for clothing because the material is mounted on a wool foundation. It is reported by Consul General T. W. Sammons, from Australia. The inventor claims that this material has an excellent appearance, that it is suitable for all purposes for which fur is utilized, and for clothing where the utmost warmth, the least weight and the maximum of protection are demanded.

Then Plant More Trees.

Engineers report the carrying power of a stream is increased 64 times when its rate of flow is doubled, says the American Tree association in advocating more tree planting. If the flow is speeded up ten times, the rating torrent will be able to carry 1,000,000 times as much foreign material as it did when it was flowing at a normal rate of speed, causing irreparable damage and destruction of life and property.

In Conjunction With Aldebaran

By H. IRVING KING

Lucy Martin was employed in a department store and made enough to clothe herself decently and live at a respectable, though rather "miserable," boarding house—hall room, of course. All of Mrs. Clancy's boarders were "engaged in business" of some sort, and left home right after breakfast for their various stations in life. Summer evenings they sat and talked on the front steps, and winter evenings they gathered at cards and sang in the front parlor. But, though thrown so intimately together in their leisure hours, they really knew little or nothing about each other. Though confiding by nature, Lucy was as secretive as any of her fellow boarders. If she had been going to confide in anybody—and to confide in somebody she did long—it would have been in that fat, jolly, motherly Mrs. Pinkerton, who was supposed to keep an employment agency somewhere downtown. Though Lucy's fellow boarders did not know the story of her life, we do, and this much may be told. Hers was the usual story of a girl in a small town possessed, or rather obsessed, with an idea of going to the big city and finding the cure of her genius denied it in her narrow and native community.

Lucy, being an orphan, with only an aunt and a lover to consider, went to New York—both aunt and lover tumultuously objecting. She had an idea she could sing; but after contact with several operatic managers—or their office boys and choir masters, she found she couldn't, and finally landed behind a department store counter. When this happened she changed her boarding house and stopped writing opposite her, and said in a deep, emphatic voice: "You would know me you love. He is well. He seeks you. There shines for you in the Fifth Avenue a star which, two days from today, will be in conjunction with the bright Aldebaran. In that conjunction is your fate. Two days from today, at two o'clock in the afternoon, be at Sixth Avenue and Fifty-eighth street, when all will be revealed. Adieu."

The light went out, and Lucy, startled, groped her way out of the room. When she got to the sidewalk again she said to herself: "Nonsense! I won't do it. I've wasted $2."

But she was at the appointed place at the appointed time, nevertheless, and a man, apparently waiting for her there, cried out: "Lucy!" And she answered "George."

"Several days ago," he explained later, "I received a letter signed 'Madame Charmion,' saying that if I wanted news of B. M. to send $5 to the address given and all would be arranged. I thought it was a fake, but I was desperate, and sent the five. Two days ago I got a telegram ordering me to be at Sixth Avenue and Fifty-eighth street today at two o'clock. And I was there."

Then Lucy told her story, ending with: "It's just wonderful, George. I wonder how she knew."

"I don't know and I don't care," answered George. "But that conjunction of the madame's seems to have worked all right. Hurrah for the bright star Aldebaran! We'll take the next train home."

The night the portly and comfortable Mrs. Pinkerton, otherwise Madame Charmion, shook with silent laughter as she read over again and fled away for a possible future use one of George's letters to Lucy, the envelope to which had in one corner "Return to George Campbell, Middleville, N. Y." Which is a warning to girls who keep bundles of their lover's letters, and live in boarding houses, to stow the letters in a locked trunk or to be sure and lock their room doors when they leave in the morning. Though in Lucy's case it was just as well that she did not do this. As to the rest, in the hands of a benevolent genius-like Madame Charmion you must admit that there is something in the occult after all.

SHE WAS MAKING PROGRESS

No Wonder Hubby Was Proud of the Dinner His Young Bride Had "Cooked."

This bride of three months lives in a flat and has become very friendly with her neighbors. She strolled into a company of other women who have their habitat in the same building, sat down and said she was tired. Of course another woman asked what she had been doing.

"Just prepared dinner for my beloved," she said, "and for one who never cooked before it was some task."

"How did the beloved like it?" another neighbor asked.

"He was proud of me," replied the bride, glowing through her weary countenance.

"Review the menu," came a chorus. "All right," came back from the bride: "Sliced tomatoes, boiled eggs, canned corn, lettuce, chocolate, dried beef and hot rolls from the bakery. I tell you it's no easy job to learn to cook in three months."

Where Women Are Supreme.

Women, not only have obtained the right to vote, but their influence is beginning to be felt in the arrangement of their homes. In the old days the architect was satisfied to design a good-looking building, with the kitchen tucked away anywhere and closets placed wherever he might have a bit of waste space. But the newer buildings are all provided with light airy closets. The kitchens are well lighted and ventilated.

Many of the houses now have a small opening in the outside wall to accommodate the garbage can, and ventilators to carry the cooking fumes outside are provided above the kitchen stove.

For generations we women who do our own housework had to suffer, said one woman, according to the New York Sun. "No one seemed to care. Today woman's place is not entirely in the home but when she is there she has it her own way."

Who Uses the Matches?

It is rather curious to find that the people of Great Britain use more matches than any other people. The average is eight a head per day. Belgium comes next with seven a day, and America third with six. No wonder matches are cheap; one pound of phosphorus is sufficient to head 1,000,000 matches. One firm in Austria alone for the war used ten tons of phosphorus a year, and turned out 25,000,000 matches. An English company uses annually 100,000 pounds of sulphur, 700,000 feet of white pine timber and 150 tons of straw board for their boxes.

Revive Old Church Row.

A movement has been started to have the body of Ernest Renan, author of "The Life of Jesus," transferred to the Pantheon, thus reviving the clerical and anticlerical controversy which is ever ready to spring into activity in France. The Pantheon, although once a church, was the "Temple of Reason" during the revolution, and is not, in the eyes of the church, a consecrated burying ground. The centenary of the philosopher and historian was observed on February 20 at an elaborate ceremony presided over by President Millerand and attended by representatives of 20 foreign universities.

POULTRY

STRIVING FOR WINTER EGGS

Room, Warmth, Ventilation and Light Are Among Most Essential Factors With Hens.

The Missouri poultry house originally designed several years ago by a poultry department of the Missouri College of Agriculture, and now general use in many states and in Dominion of Canada, allows two square feet of floor space for each hen. One nest is provided for every six hens, and enough room is supplied to give each hen a covered nest eight inches apart.

This extremely practical poultry house has a number of special features which have proved helpful in getting high winter production.

Light is admitted from all directions by means of six-light glass windows, two in front, two in each side, one in the rear. There are, therefore, no dark corners in this house. Bright light comes in from all sides the hen scratch in all directions and the hen never piles up.

A 30-inch wire-covered opening, a foot from the floor and extending to each side of the door the entire width of the front, gives the Missouri poultry house good ventilation. During winter the success of ventilation, this type depends upon having a east, west, and north sides and a roof entirely air-tight so that wind will drive into the house only a distance and never back to the room which are on the north side. This is a gradual movement of the air from the inside out, thus insuring an abundance of ventilation without drafts.

The straw loft is another distinctive feature. Joists or collar beams are placed in the house just high enough to afford head room. In order to prevent the birds from roosting on them they are covered with inch boards for inches wide, placed two inches apart. This forms a loft which is filled with straw. The straw acts as a sort of sponge by absorbing both dampness and heat and helps to keep the house drier and warmer in winter and cooler in summer.

Using this poultry house, 238 demonstration farm flocks owners in 37 Missouri counties last year got 125 per hen and a profit of $2.88 per hen.

Extension Circular 101, sent free by the Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station, Columbia, Mo., gives plan, lumber bill and directions to eat anyone to build a poultry house of this type.

ATTORNEY ROBERT TALKED TO MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

Of Fair Street Reformed Church On Friday Evening.

The Men's Bible Class of the Fair Street Reformed Church entertained the Community Club of the Port Ewen Reformed Church in the Sunday school room of the church last Friday evening. The meeting was attended by a large number.

The class decided to go to the Roxmore Inn at Woodland Valley for its annual outing dinner this year to be held Friday evening, June 8. After some discussion the president, Mr. Roosa, asked what the members wished to pay for the dinner. Henry Woolsey replied that the majority wanted to pay about $5 cents but in all probability they would pay $1.50 a plate. So the committee was instructed to go ahead and make all arrangements for a good dinner and a good time. John Eckert, county attorney, was the speaker for the evening. Mr. Eckert said after trying to think of some subject to speak upon, he found himself somewhat in the same position as a certain farmer, who was driving to town with a cart load of apples, the road being very rough and as the cart went bouncing along over the road, the apples went bouncing out and bouncing in. Finally the cart became stuck in a mud hole so the farmer investigated and thereupon discovered his apples all gone, he remarked: "Unloaded and stuck by gosh." Nevertheless Mr. Eckert gave a very interesting talk on political affairs touching upon the subjects of direct primaries, the so called shipping and farming blocs. Among the things Mr. Eckert said that he believed that the old time party government, even if directed by a boss who by the way, was necessary to a successful party, was a better form of government because party government saw that the things carried out were for the benefit of the majority from the east to the west and from the north to the south of our country. Where under direct primaries the government often takes on more of an individual form of government meaning that some of the things that are trying to be carried out are more for the benefit of a certain locality or group regardless of what bearing it may have upon the majority of the country or people. Speaking in regard to the 18th Amendment the law as it is today is a joke and when the people make a joke out of a law it is a serious thing because it leads to taking the same attitude towards other laws and that the best and only remedy for this situation is to stop pussy-footing around and come out for the 18th Amendment or against it. If the majority of the people want it then enforce the law and if they do not want it then take it off our books, so that a large number of people will not be breaking the law. Following Mr. Eckert's talk the class voted that Mr. Eckert had a number of apples left in his cart and was not stuck by any means. President Roosa's call upon Mr. Taylor of Port Ewen, who spoke upon the benefits arrived at from sacrifice and cooperation. Following Secretary Oke of the Chamber of Commerce was called upon and he spoke of the great need our city had for some zoning plan. After which a buffet lunch was furnished. Nobody had to be served, everybody helped himself to whatever he liked, of which there was plenty. Talking it all in all it was a big night for the class and everyone went home feeling that it was an evening well spent.

Partridge Swallows in Mongolia.
Almost everywhere in Mongolia we met with either single pairs or whole flocks of the grayish-yellow partridges, or "partridge swallows," so called because they have long, sharp tails resembling those of swallows, and because their flight is a close copy of that of the swallows. Says Ferdinand Osendowsky in his absorbing book "Beasts, Men and Gods": "These birds are very tame or fearless, allowing men to come within 10 or 15 paces of them; but when they do break, they go high and fly long distances without lighting, whistling all the time quite like swallows. Their general markings are light gray and yellow, though the males have pretty chocolate spots on the backs and wings, while their legs and feet are heavily feathered."

BOY SCOUTS

BOY SCOUT VS. PLAIN BOY

A remarkable illustration of why scout training should be the privilege of every boy is shown in the following story of two groups of boys, one composed of scouts and the other not of scouts, both placed in the same predicament, which called for intelligent action, resourcefulness and grit. The way in which the two groups handled the same situation is significant.

A party of Pueblo, Colorado, scouts last fall were on a hike when they were caught in a blizzard which lasted for forty-eight hours. "It happens that in our part of the country," says the scout executive in relating the incident, "during the fall and early winter blizzards come up without a warning. These scouts were seven miles from town and were accompanied by their troop leader. They immediately sought refuge in an old building and then built a fire. They remained here unharmed throughout the blizzard. During the storm it was humanly impossible to get through the snow to the boys. After the storm abated a searching party was formed and the boys were met on their way home, perfectly safe and sound and scouting was given a great deal of credit for the way the troop leader cared for his troop."

The blizzard started Saturday afternoon and it was not learned until Sunday afternoon that three more boys who were not scouts had gone on a hike to the same place but had not returned. A neighbor of the boys who was crossing the prairie at that time unexpectedly came upon two of the lads who, half dazed, were wandering aimlessly around and did not recognize him.

"He brought them to the city and late that night when they regained their senses, they asked for their other companion. This revealed the fact that there was another boy left on the prairie. A searching party of 100 scouts was formed and sent out early the next morning. Forming in a straight line with only a short distance between each lad, the scouts searched the prairie for several miles around the spot where the boys claimed they left the other lad."

"The arroyos were filled with snow from four to twelve feet deep and the snow on the level was several inches deep, and when darkness came on the party was forced to return without having recovered the body. The next morning an assistant scoutmaster accompanied by the father of one of the other scouts went to the place where the scouts left off. After searching a short while they found the body of the little boy."

"The two boys who were rescued were asked why they did not build a fire to protect themselves from the cold and they stated that the woods and weeds were wet with snow and so they did not try to build a fire. They explained also that they started to hike for home when the storm started and the little boy nine years old, being unable to hike rapidly, gave out and they tried to carry him. They could not carry him far so laid him down in the edge of an arroyo while they started towards what they believed to be a farm house nearby. They had mistaken two large trees for a house and when they attempted to find the boy whom they had left in the arroyo they could not find him so they sought refuge in another canyon. The boys said they covered their little companion with some weeds and brush to protect him from the storm. Of course it is evident that had these boys had scout training they could have built a fire and done other things to assist themselves in the emergency."

SCOUT COURAGE

Caged in a moving elevator in a New York apartment house with an uncontrollable police dog, a frantic maid, and other passengers, Scout Charles Littman showed rare courage. The dog had driven the colored elevator operator out of the car just as he opened the door for the eighth floor. The operator jumped but the elevator kept right on toward the roof. Scout Littman knew that unless he could gain control of the elevator quickly a fatal accident would occur. He fought off the frantic dog, seized the lever and stopped the car at the tenth floor. He flung open the door and everyone bolted for safety. But the police dog had marked him as a victim and breaking away from the maid who had not the strength to hold him, the animal chased the scout up two flights of stairs, where Charles climbed through a scuttle hole to safety while the dog was tearing at his legs.

SCOUTS SAVE BABY CALF

While on a recent hike, Troop 1 of Warren, Ariz., heard a moan of distress. The noise seemed to come out of the ground. Upon investigation the scouts found that a calf had fallen into a prospector's excavation and was unable to get out. The troop quickly tied their scout belts together and one boy let himself down into the hole. He tied the belt rope around the calf and soon the other boys had the little animal above ground and free.

Readers Appreciate Poetry.

Not only are there a great many writers of real poetry, and still more writers of near poetry, but there must be an enormous number of readers who do not turn over the page hastily when they see a poem in a magazine. There is no way of getting a census of these poetry readers; but every one knows the axiom of editorial offices: Give the public what it wants. Magazine editors are printing more poetry and better poetry than they did a few decades back. Some magazines even feature poems instead of sticking them carelessly in odd corners at the end of stories and among advertisements. Hence the logical deduction that verse is now a live and popular subject—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Fish's Smelling Equipment.

Fishes possess a smelling faculty according to a writer in Aquatic Life. An examination of the nostrils of a fish reveals the fact that they are not connected with the air tube system as in most animals, he says, but lead into blind pockets, lined with delicate membranes well supplied with nerves. In fishes, water is not drawn through the nostrils, but merely into the small pockets, and these may be emptied and refilled. The quantity of water brought into contact with the nerves of smell must be comparatively small. In some few fishes, as in the globe fishes and puffers, for example, there is no nasal pocket, the nerves being directed into external processes.

Valuable.

After making her will, Mrs. Isabella Fowler put it "safely" away in a bureau drawer in her home at Oaking, N. Y. After twenty years, she died. Her husband found that rats had chewed the will into tatters. Luckily the probate clerk is able to piece it together so the estate can be administered as Mrs. Fowler desired. For all your valuables you should have three kinds of protection—against rats, fire and theft. A safe deposit box in the bank is best. If you insist on keeping them at home, use a tin can and line it with asbestos. Most of us are too careless with our valuables, unless they're cash. Where are your insurance policies, will, etc.?

PAY OF TEACHERS IN OTHER CITIES

There can be no doubt of the interest of the wide awake people of this or any other city in topics which concern their welfare, both present and future. Is there any subject more vital to the home, the city, the country at large, than the welfare of the children? Is there any business organization needing more intelligent, more sighted and sympathetic administration than the schools in which our boys and girls are receiving the training which will fit them for their future participation in the problems that will confront them in after life. For them knowledge must be secured, good health must be secured, moral fibre must be toughened and social and civic obligations must be made clear. The responsibility resting upon the teachers entrusted with these duties is by no means slight. Is the fact of their work being of such a nature that an adequate reward is not possible to work an injustice to them in the matter of salaries? Is the efficient teacher of 18, 25, 35 or more years' experience in Kingston to be compelled to serve for less than teachers of other cities of the same class are receiving for eight years' experience? The following salary schedule for some of these cities is shown below for comparison. In a list of 46 cities showing salary schedules for 1922-23 and 1923-24 not one city is shown as giving the teacher of eight years' experience less than teachers of fifteen or more years' experience are receiving in Kingston. How Linit gives you that DELIGHTFUL FEELING of SLEEPING between LINEN SHEETS

THERE is nothing more comfortable than the clean, cool fragrance of linen sheets. You can have exactly the same effect with cotton sheets by starching with Linit, the remarkable new starch discovery. Why this is possible is interesting to every housewife:

Linit is made by an improved process so that the starch remains thin and free-running. This enables it to penetrate every thread of the fabric, giving even cotton sheets a beautiful appearance and a soft, cool, pliable finish like pure linen itself.

The penetrating power of Linit helps resist wear and also keeps the starch from caking, smearing or sticking to the iron; also preserves the material.

You can get the same beautiful linen finish to all your cotton fabrics, pillow cases, table-cloths, in fact every garment in your home—that same delightful finish you find in garments and fabrics fresh from the store. And you will find all Linit-starched fabrics and garments free from the disagreeable lint you notice so often with cotton goods.

Your grocer has Linit. Get a package today and begin this delightful way of starching.

CAR RAN INTO A STORE FRONT

A Nash Six Painted Red Containing Several Men Ran Up on Sidewalk and Into Window of North Front Street Store, and Then Backing Off Into a Car.

Shortly after midnight Sunday morning a Nash Six, painted red, in which several men were riding, shot off the road and up on the sidewalk crashing into the store front of the New York Cloak and Suit Company on North Front street, wrecking the window. The car then backed off and ran into Ford car.

By the time the officer on the beat arrived on the scene, both Nash and Ford had disappeared.

Charles Silver reported to the police department Sunday that while driving his Durant coupe, another car driven by J. Lane, and carrying the license No. 885-119 N. Y., struck his car. Silver was coming out of Smith avenue into Albany avenue and Lane was driving out Albany avenue, toward Saugerties. Both cars were badly damaged, but no one was injured.

Nelson Boice of 212 Foxhall avenue, reported to the police Saturday afternoon that while driving his Chevrolet down Broadway and about to turn into Andrew street, his car was struck by another car bearing license No. 635-551 N. Y., breaking his fenders and hurrying him on the Durant. The other car failed to stop but proceeded onward, according to Mr. Boice.

Nation's Forest Problem.

Every year makes the forest problem of the United States more clear, says Col. William B. Greeley, chief of the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. The problem has two main features. The first feature is the rising cost of timber products, which is due primarily to heavier transportation charges from more and more distant sources of supply. The second feature is the unproductive conditions of immense areas of land which are not adapted to agriculture.

Affects All Countries.

The international character of commerce is a federation of financial, industrial and commercial forces of the world modeled upon the chamber of commerce of the United States for uniting business in the work of removing artificial and unnecessary obstacles to trade between nations and overcoming foreign trade resistance. It has more than 1,000 members in 25 countries, among which the United States is included.

CARS CRASH AT BRIDGE ENTRANCE

Two Cars Came Together With Crash at Abeel Street Entrance to Rondout Creek Bridge, but No One Was Seriously Injured—Both Cars Damaged.

About 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning an enclosed Cleveland car owned and driven by Morris Kishenblum, proprietor of the New York Cleaning & Dyeing Company on upper Broadway, and a Nash Six, owned by the West Shore Garage and driven by William Cranston, a taxi driver, came together with a terrific crash at the entrance to the Rondout Creek Bridge on Abeel street. Cranston was alone in his car and there were five others in the car with Kishenblum.

So great was the force of the impact that Kishenblum's car was hurled over on its side and landed against the bridge abutment. At the time Cranston was driving over Abeel street toward Broadway, while Kishenblum was on his way down the Wurts street hill to cross the bridge on his way to New York.

Each driver blamed the other for the collision.

In the car with Kishenblum were Mrs. Julia Kushner, Mrs. Kemel, and three children, Ida Kishenblum, Gerald, her brother, and Freda Kishenblum. The girl Ida was cut about the fingers from flying glass and Mrs. Kushner complained of pains in her side. That no one was seriously injured seems a miracle.

A hurry call to police headquarters brought a squad of police to the scene who took charge and cut the wrecked cars out of the way of traffic. The Cleveland car was later able to leave under its own power for a garage for repairs. The Nash car was also taken away later.

This is a dangerous corner, but it would seem that if local drivers, who are aware of that fact, used ordinary precautions in approaching the street intersection that accidents could be avoided.

Old English Custom Revived.

An ancient custom of "rocking" the baby, in his church that had been allowed to lapse for a century, was revived by the vicar of Billdworth, England, at the Sunday evening service following Candlemas. The latest born baby boy of the parish was taken to the church by its parents and placed in an old wooden cradle, decorated with Candlemas flowers and with two candles on either side, that was dedicated by the vicar (a bachelor) who "rocked" the cradle several times, inside the altar rails. The "rocking" is not a legend, but an important village ceremony that recalls Christ's presentation to the temple, and calls Christ's parents to offer their infants to Christ. The ceremony died out because Candlemas was a bad time to expose a baby, for February breezes touch infant cheeks very roughly.

Golf Does Not Help

Golf is no help in conditioning ball players, believes Ty Cobb.

Players at this time of the year must develop running and throwing muscles and develop the faculty of following the ball with their eyes. He must learn to gauge the speed of a thrown or batted ball. Doing these things requires all a player's physical energy. If he plays golf after practice is over then he is overdoing things.

MGR. McNALLY ENDS SEASON RIGHT

By Defeating Phenicia 22-21 in Last Thirty Seconds—Likely the Last Semi-Pro Game in This Section This Season.

What was probably the last semi-pro basketball game of the season in this section was played at Shandaken Saturday night when the East Kingston team defeated the Phenicia aggregation in the last thirty seconds of play by a 22-21 score. The game was fast throughout and one of the best that has been played in Allaben Hall this year. The scoring honors for the winners were rather evenly divided, although Hurro did succeed in annexing one more point than his teammates.

COLONIALS MAKE BRILLIANT START

By Defeating Red Hook 4-0—Play Errorless Ball—Culliton Allows Two Hits and Strikes Out Twelve—Borgman Has Perfect Day.

The show was falling gently on the ground. The fans were shivering in the stands. As Benny Borgman took his stand, he let the plate.

And Rossback let her go from off the mound. Bang! The first hit of the season. Yes, and what's more that wasn't the only time he did it either. In fact the diminutive basketball star seemed possessed with the idea that every time he stepped up to the plate he was supposed to hit the ball.

Benny showed his lack of good judgment also when he did this little stunt off of the offerings of Rossback, the star D. & H. pitcher. Now if someone will substitute a little poem about the work of Culliton on a cold winter's day the reader will have the reason why the Red Hook baseball team went down to a 2-0 defeat on Sunday afternoon at the hands of the Kingston Colonials. Here is the whole story in a nutshell. Borgman made four hits out of four times at bat. "Bud" Culliton let the Red Hookers down with only two hits and although the temperature was somewhere near freezing, proceeded to strike twelve men out during the course of the afternoon. Then too, he only allowed one man to take a walk to first base. Not a very nice way to treat visitors. The other members of the local aggregation were right there also. There was not an error chalked up along side of any of the Colonial team throughout the entire afternoon. Schwab showed the fans that he was in good form when he made one good hit out of three times at bat and also succeeded in stealing a base.

As the fans set shivering in the stands waiting for the game to begin there was considerable speculation as to what kind of a baseball player Borgman would turn out to be. As he came to the plate for the first time he received a great ovation from the crowd. The story of his hitting has already been told. However he is not only a good hitter but should turn out to be a good fielder also, although he did not have much of an opportunity to show his wares along this line. He was given one chance during the afternoon and demonstrated to the fans that whatever else he may or may not be he at least has a reliable arm.

Culliton started the day off right by striking out Curtis, the first man to face him. Kelly, the next victim, was easily disposed of when he knocked a liner to Culliton, who immediately delivered it to Coyle, who registered the first put out of the afternoon and season. Foster tied to McCue. In the Colonials' half of the first, Borgman registered his first hit of the day by knocking a swift one to Kelly, who was unable to handle it. Coyle bunted in an attempt to get Borgman down to second, but Benny was caught while Coyle reached first. Coyle then attempted to steal second but was caught. Robins pulled down the first walk but Deegan ended matters by flying out to the catcher.

In the second, Culliton gave his only walk of the game, but the next three men to face were retired in quick order.

Ross, who was playing right field in the place of Dunn, who had been called to Albany by the death of his brother, made the second hit of the afternoon for the Colonials when he batted a long one to right field. Terpening bunted but both he and Ross were caught in the jaws of a double play.

After McCue had fanned in the third inning, Culliton reached second on a grounder when Foster, who was playing third, threw the ball over Lowther's head. Borgman then hit a single to right but Bud was caught trying to get back to third. Coyle was retired on a grounder to Foster, who got the ball over to Lowther this time without registering an error.

Although Rossback had been having a rather hard time of it throughout the whole afternoon, the first hint of what was going to happen to him did not come until the sixth inning, when the Colonials' offensive began to assume threatening proportions. Borgman started things off by making his third hit. Coyle reached first. After two failures to bunt, Robins went out on an infield fly. Deegan was given free passage without hindrance to first base, loading the bases. Ross fanned and Terpening hit one straight at Curtis, ending the rally.

In the seventh, however, things began to happen. Schwab was the first man to face the star pitcher, and he hit a nice one to left. McCue fanned but Schwab found his springing legs and stole second. Culliton then hit a single, scoring Schwab. Coyle then found his batting eye and hit to left, scoring Culliton. Robins also cracked "her" one scored Coyle. Deegan was put out at first. The rally was over but the Colonials had three runs, which was enough to win the game for them.

Ellis went in the box for Red Hook and developed an exceedingly wild streak. If the Colonials' work on the bags had been a little better in this inning they would have put over two or three more runs.

Culliton ended the day in the right manner by striking out the first three men to face him in the ninth. The first win of the season had been registered by the local aggregation. A crowd of 1,200 witnessed the contest.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT
by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

The writer recently spent several weeks in Turkey, Egypt and some of the countries of Southern Europe. One cannot make even the most superficial visit to these far-away lands and not be impressed first of all by the lack of progress as compared with American standards. Also one need look no further than these regions for the most graphic illustration of the fact that there can be no national progress excepting where there is a background of individual thrift, education and ambition.

Trade George Smith

George Smith of the Phillies, right-handed pitcher, formerly a Columbia star, and once with the Giants, was recently exchanged for Clarence Mitchell of the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Robins, only left-handed spitballer in baseball. No cash changed hands.

Average Carfare in United States. The average street car fare in American cities is 7.53 cents.

One views in all of these countries the landmarks of ancient glory—temples and palaces of great beauty; numerous works of art reminiscent of the golden age of the painter and the sculptor; foundations and ruins of monumental structures where oratory and the drama were born and where the philosophies of the ages first were uttered.

It is most incongruous to note the poverty, squalor and illiteracy that exists among many of those who live today amid the ruins of those ancient splendors. No greater contrast can be imagined.

In witnessing these spectacles one is most forcibly impressed with the fact that no matter how powerful a nation may be, how exalted its civilization nor how splendorous did its accomplishments in the arts and sciences, there can be no permanency unless the personal lives and habits of the people are sound.

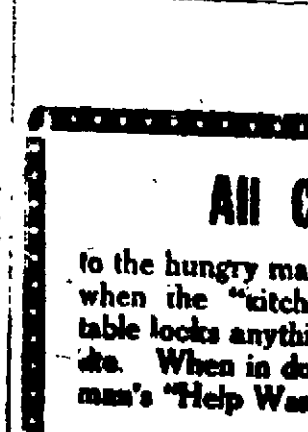

Civilization, after all, is just a matter of what individuals do day by day.

Had the people of Egypt, for example, practiced individual thrift, as millions of Americans know it today, through the many centuries that have elapsed since the days of their ancient wealth and power, what a tremendous force in human progress they would be today!

No nation can rise higher than the level of individual thrift and education among its people; nor will any nation ever sink lower than that same level.
